

Moffitt Cancer Center's Healing Arts Gallery presents
COUNTING RADIATION:
a series of drawings that explore one artist's experience of cancer

RECEPTION: Wednesday, October 10th, 2:00–3:00 p.m.
Performance by the artist at 2:30 p.m.

Exhibition on view September 10, 2012 – February 10, 2013
Location: Moffitt Cancer Center, Main Hospital
1st Floor, near Radiation Oncology

Diagnosed with cancer in 2009 at age 25, Megan Hildebrandt strives through her work to comprehend mortality and vitality, physical and psychological endurance, and the ways in which people document the passage of time. This exhibition features nine works from Hildebrandt's Counting Radiation series, in which she uses ink and graphite to translate the temporality of duration onto paper.

For more info contact: Cheryl Belanger
Coordinator, Arts in Medicine, Moffitt Cancer Center
(813) 745-1836 or cheryl.belanger@moffitt.org
A collaboration between USF Contemporary Art Museum and Moffitt Cancer Center

